

THE FLOWING TIDE.

GREAT UNIONIST WIN AT NEWCASTLE.

THE NINTH CAPTURE.

A great victory for Tariff Reform was won in Newcastle, where Mr. G. Renwick, the Unionist, has captured the seat from the Radicals by a huge majority. The figures are—

Mr. G. Renwick (U.)..... 15,893
Mr. E. Shortt (R.)..... 11,720
Mr. E. Hartley (Sec.)..... 2,971

Unionist majority..... 2,143

The General Election the figures are—

W. Hudson (Lab.)..... 18,869
T. Cairns (R.)..... 18,423
Mr. W. R. Plummer (U.)..... 11,942
G. Renwick (U.)..... 11,223

It will be seen that at the last election the late Mr. Cairns's majority over the Unionist was 6,461, which has not only been wiped out but replaced by a Unionist majority of 2,143.

An analysis of the voting shows that compared with the figures at the General Election the

Unionist vote increased..... 1,921
Radical vote declined..... 6,703

This represents a total turnover of 8,624 votes. Mr. Hartley (Sec.) has fewer than 15,000 votes behind Mr. Hudson's record as Labour candidate.

Messages of Congratulation.

The result was immediately telegraphed to Mr. Chamberlain, who sent the following message to Mr. Renwick:—

Heartily congratulate you on great change.—Chamberlain.

Mr. Balfour telegraphed:—
Warmest congratulations on your most magnificent victory.

A message from Mr. Bonar Law ran:—
Warmest congratulations on splendid victory, which answers the Prime Minister's letter by indicating to him that the most effective method open to him of dealing with unemployment is to give place to others.

The election is one of more than ordinary significance, for every effort had been put forward by the Government to hold the seat, the Premier making a strong personal appeal to the electors, and promising a "drastic handling" of the question of unemployment as a stimulant to their loyalty.

The Victor interviewed.

Mr. Renwick, when interviewed on his victory, said: "Whatever Mr. Shortt may say or think, I have won solely on the subject of Tariff Reform, which the Times, in common with the Times, the Daily News, and the Daily Mail, have all made Tariff Reform the great plank of my platform, and while I am grateful to the licensed press for their support, and to the temperance extremists for their opposition, it is the decision of the electors in favour of a change in our local conditions that has placed me at the head of the poll."

Mr. Shortt's Explanation.

Mr. Shortt, who was also interviewed, said he attributed the result to side issues. He complained of misrepresentation on the Licensing Bill, and remarked that unemployment had an adverse effect upon his chances. Then, he said, always went against the Government. As to Socialism, he took the view that as a political force it had no more strength in Newcastle than anywhere else. He did not think that the dear coal agitation had had any effect. In conclusion he said: "The two main things to which I attribute my defeat are the Licensing Bill and trade depression."

Alderman Hartley's Cry.

Mr. Hartley, who also discussed the situation, said he did not recognize defeat. His party had succeeded in keeping the Liberal out, and they would do so everywhere, unless Liberalism made a change. This action would tend towards reform. "Death to Liberalism!" was his cry. After paying all expenses of the election, the Socialists had a handsome balance in hand, probably sufficient to pay the returning officer's fee in another contest.

NEW MEMBER'S CAREER.

A NOTABLE ELLECTORSHIP FOR OVER THIRTY YEARS.

Mr. Renwick, who sat as junior M.P. for Newcastle from 1890 to 1900, was born in that city 58 years ago. At 16 years of age he entered the office of a quayside merchant at a weekly wage of 5s. Within 15 years he had advanced that he was able to found Tynes Pontoon and Dry Dock Co., which was afterwards acquired and employed by the new great firm of Messrs. Swan, Hunter, and Wigham Richardson (Ld.). Then Mr. Renwick turned his attention to ship-owning, and quickly became, as he is now, the sole partner in the firm of Fisher, Renwick, and Co., who rank amongst the best known and most highly respected shipowners in Newcastle.

An Ardent Tariff Reformer.

Mr. Renwick has for a long time been a spirited Tariff Reformer, and even in his early years was a notable electioner. When only 23 years of age Mr. Renwick founded a local Parliamentary society, which soon boasted more than 300 members, and later that society became a prime force in Parliamentary elections. Indeed, it is not too much to say that it was largely responsible for the defeat of Mr. John Morley and for the ultimate return of Mr. Renwick with Sir Wm. Plummer in 1900.

MIDDLE CLASS REVOLT.

A RADICAL M.P. ON THE MORAL OF THE VICTORY.

Sir C. Furness, Radical M.P. for Hatterpool, pointed out moral of the Newcastle election, in an interview with a representative. "My own opinion," he said, "is that the Newcastle election result represents the revolt of middle-class Liberals against the Government, whose seeming tendency in the direction of Socialistic legislation has seriously perturbed the minds of many men who, by thrift, by industry, and by business ability, have succeeded in acquiring means which they would like to invest in the great industrial enterprises of the country. But, during the past year or two, they have not felt quite sure of their ground. They think they see in the Government policy the tendency to interfere unduly, not so much with the trade and commerce of the country, as with the instruments of production, in the shape both of capital and labour. And this tendency they have recently, knowing they do that the prosperity of the country depends entirely on trade unrestricted by vexatious legislation, and on a social existence immune from the experiments and fads of mere impractical theorists."

Nine Seats Won.

Since the General Election the Unionists have gained nine seats from the Radicals, while the latter have lost two to Socialists or Labour candidates. The following is a list of party gains at the by-elections:—

UNIONIST GAINS.
Brigg, Cockerham, Mid Devon, Weymouth, Peckham.

Radical Gains.
Nile.

Socialist Gains (from Liberals).
Colne Valley, Jarrow.

NEXT GENERAL ELECTION

CUMBERLAND (Cockerham).—Sir F. F. Vane (R.) has been adopted.

HARTLEPOOL.—Mr. J. Holmes (Lab.) has been invited to stand.

CARLISLE.—The Labour Party will oppose Mr. Lloyd-George, M.P. (R.).

CHESTER (Altrincham).—Viscount Bury (U.) has been recommended for adoption.

CHESTER (Crewe).—Mr. F. H. Rose has been adopted as prospective Labour candidate. Mr. J. Binney is the prospective U. candidate in opposition to Mr. Tomkinson, M.P.

GLASGOW (Mid.).—Mr. V. Hartshorn (Lab.), miners' agent at Maesteg, has been selected to oppose the Solicitor-General (Sir S. Evans).

LEICESTERSHIRE (Loughborough).—Mr. N. S. Carrington (U.) has been adopted in opposition to Sir M. Levy.

DERBY.—Mr. G. B. Bayley, of Croydon, who holds an important position on the Metropolitan Ry., has been recommended for adoption as U. candidate.

REAL ENTERPRISE.

BILL POSTING ON A CUNARD LINER.

An amusing scene was witnessed at the Cunard Pier, New York, just before the Mauretania sailed for England. A company of enterprising bill-posters took it into their heads that a large theatrical playbill, with which they had been beautifying various parts of the city, would look especially effective on the giant Cunard's bow, and having, by the exercise of fine strategy, secured a position on the port side from which they could carry their scheme into effect, the knights of the paste-pot and brush were soon hard at work. It was just at this moment that splashing and shouting announced to those on the liner that a man had fallen from one of the lower decks into the water. His rescue was the work of only a few minutes, and he was little the worse for the ducking, but the rescuers espied the indignity to which the Mauretania's nose was being subjected, and an exchange of pertinent remarks attracted general attention to the matter. Seamen and officials, greatly wroth, putting in an appearance, the bill-posters left in a hurry, and the crew, aboard and ashore, screamed with laughter as they dodged their pursuers and eventually escaped.

NURSE'S ROMANCE.

THE HISTORY OF A LARGE LEGACY.

One of the members of the staff of the Registered Nurses' Society, which has its headquarters in Oxford-st., has just resigned in consequence of a large legacy. She is one of the sisters who being placed in comparatively poor circumstances, took up nursing as a means of livelihood. It was in 1901 that she was chosen for a long and painful case, and found herself in the presence of the tragedy of one of England's aristocratic families. A young man whose position and prospects might have made him the envy of his fellows, was stricken with one of the most terrible maladies. The long struggle ended only recently, and the devotion of the nurse, who was his constant attendant for seven years, was recognised by the patient leaving her a considerable portion of his fortune, the legacy amounting in fact to £20,000. Her own health impaired, the nurse has now left London for a long holiday, taking with her one of her sisters.

CARDINAL MATHIEU.

The following bulletin was issued yesterday:—"His Eminence Cardinal Mathieu is making rapid progress towards recovery. Unless unforeseen circumstances arise, no further bulletin will be issued."

Samuel Masterman, for 14 years Assistant Secretary of the Friendly Society of Ironfounders, and a well-known figure in the trade union world, died in Manchester. He was recently elected general secretary to the society, and was to have entered on his new duties on Monday.

WORK OF THE G.P.O.

GROWTH OF THE NATION'S CORRESPONDENCE.

According to the report of the Postmaster-General for the year ended March 31 last, which has just been issued, the number of postal packets estimated to have been delivered in the United Kingdom was 4,972,070,000, an average of 112.5 per person. They included:—

Letters..... 2,965,900,000
An increase of 21 per cent., and an average of 64.8 to each person of the population.

Post-cards..... 858,300,000
An increase of 3.2 per cent., and an average of 19.4 per person.

Halfpenny pkts. About 960,000,000
Newspapers..... 199,800,000
Packets..... 109,470,000

The increase in letters last year was 3.5 per cent., and in post-cards 3.9.

The number of undelivered packets, including packets entirely undelivered and articles found loose, is estimated at 31,278,000—an increase of about 1,512,000, or 5.08 per cent.

Undelivered Wealth.

The undeliverable registered letters and letters containing articles of value numbered 393,238, or 11.13 per cent. more than in 1906-7. These letters contained £19,378 16s. 6d. in cash and bank notes, and £636,690 17s. in bills, cheques, money orders, postal orders, and postage stamps. They included a large number of "Limerick" letters, or letters containing "last lines" with postal orders enclosed, which had been refused because competitors had omitted to prepay the postage. Largely as a result of the reduction of the rate of postage on British newspapers to Canada, there has been an

A LADY'S PLIGHT.

PREMIER'S DAUGHTER FOUND UNCONSCIOUS.

The daughter of the Prime Minister, Miss Violet Asquith, has been the victim of an unpleasant incident at the little Aberdeenshire resort Port Erroll, where her father is in residence at Slains Castle. Happily she is little the worse for her adventure. Miss Asquith had taken a walk along the "bracken" and, with a book as her companion, she was walking along the strikingly bold cliffs to the north of the castle, in the vicinity of the rocks known as the "Two Ben," a magnificent natural arch pierced through the centre of the rocks. Miss Asquith returned in time for dinner, but had forgotten her book, and about eight o'clock in the evening she informed her maid of the fact, and said she would run and fetch the book and be back in a few minutes. Darkness had come on by this time. Time passed, however, and search was made in the vicinity, but no sign could be seen or sound detected. A search party of constabulary was at once organised, and these, provided with rope ladders and lanterns, made diligent search among the rocks until 11 o'clock, but without result. Samuel Milne, a young fisherman, who had been fishing in the bay in the afternoon from Alexander Robertson's (Gorland's) boat, remarked to some of the gentlemen of the house party that during the afternoon he had observed from his boat a young lady sitting on the cliffs reading a book, but at a place on the north side of the Longhaven—a local designation—and a considerable distance

DAISY LORD.

THE HOME SECRETARY'S CONDITIONAL PROMISE.

A number of persons having petitioned the Home Secretary with reference to the case of Daisy Lord, whose death sentence for the murder of her child was commuted to penal servitude for life, a communication has been addressed to them in which Mr. Gladstone explains the action of the Home Office. He says:—"The practice in such cases is that the death sentence shall always be commuted in the first instance to penal servitude for life. This is not done with the intention that the prisoner should in any case serve for life, but because it allows the Home Secretary a free hand subsequently to modify the sentence in accordance with the circumstances of the case, and the disposition and progress of the prisoner. To fix at once a definite term would give rise to misunderstanding, and might lead in some cases to a longer detention than ultimately proves to be necessary. The prisoner then undergoes a longer or shorter period of detention in a convict prison under discipline, and with the best training and guidance which can be given by humane officers with special experience of such cases."

The Work of Reformation.

In the prison there is also a committee of ladies who, without holding any official position, take a keen interest in the prisoners, and give valuable assistance in the work of their reformation. The term of detention varies, but it now, save in exceptional circumstances, rarely exceeds three years. And it may be shorter

KIDNAPPING.

GIRL'S ESCAPE FROM A MAN.

When Jas. Brennan was brought before the Gravesend magistrates last week the evidence showed that he was leading a little girl named Manning away in the dark. Therefore he was arrested by two watermen, who had been watching his movements for about half an hour. It was also stated that he had been seen following two other little girls (sisters) who escaped him at the entrance to the Sailors' Home. Brennan was brought up again this week, and he was further charged with assaulting one of these two girls, whose names are Gladys and Ivy Eacott. Sitting in the crowded court room, with arms crossed each other, these two dark-eyed sisters might have been posing for a study of Childish Innocence.

and beauty.—According to the new evidence, prisoner followed them a considerable distance as they were going on an errand, and in a dark part of one street tried to engage them in conversation, at the same time taking Ivy in his arms. They ran away, and he entered a sweet shop, and then pursued them to the gates of the Sailors' Home.—Prisoner put no questions to the witnesses, and the only remark he made during the proceedings was "I don't remember it." The chief constable said he had not yet completed his inquiries concerning accused, who was therefore remanded for another week.

FUND FOR HEROES.

MR. CARNEGIE'S GIFT OF £250,000.

A striking benefaction, and one that is sure to be popular, has just been made by Mr. Andrew Carnegie. This is the endowment of a fund to reward the heroes of peace in the United Kingdom, and, where necessary, to provide for their widows and orphans. The formation of the fund has the approval of his Majesty the King, and it was announced at the monthly meeting of the Carnegie Dunfermline trustees. Writing from Skibo Castle, Dornoch, Sutherland, to Dr. Jas. Ross, chairman of the trustees, Mr. Carnegie says:—"The success of the Hero Fund upon the Great American Continent has been so great that I have decided to extend its benefits to our native land. We live in an heroic age! Not seldom are we thrilled by deeds of heroism where men or women are injured or lose their lives in attempting to preserve or rescue their fellows. Such are the heroes of civilisation. I have long felt that such true heroes and those dependent upon them should be freed from pecuniary care resulting from their heroism, and as a fund for this purpose I, 1,500,000dols. (£250,000) in 5 per cent. bonds, yielding £12,000 per annum, will be sent you. Judging from our experience this sum is ample to administer the trust, meet the cost of maintaining injured heroes and their families, and the disability of the heroes, and the widows and children of heroes who may lose their lives in the United Kingdom, and still leave a surplus for emergencies and contributions under Article 4 hereof."

How the Money Will Be Used.

The interest of the fund is to be used as follows: To place those following heroic vocations, who have been injured in heroic effort to save human life, in somewhat better positions pecuniarily than before, until again able to work. In case of death the widow and children to be provided for until the widow remarries and the children until they reach self-supporting age. For exceptional children exceptional grants may be made for advanced education. Grants in money or in other forms may also be made to heroes or heroines as the trustees deem advisable—each case to be judged on its merits. No grant is to be continued unless it is being nobly and properly used, and the recipients remain respectable, well-behaved members of the community. For many years claims upon the income will not exhaust it. Should a surplus remain the trustees have power to make grants to those injured in case of accidents, preferably where a hero has appeared. The fund embraced by the fund is the British Islands and the waters thereof.

His Majesty's Wish to Be Law.

No action is more heroic than that of doctors and nurses volunteering their services in the case of epidemics. Railroad employees are remarkable for their heroism. All these and similar cases are embraced. When the King presents medals for heroism in peaceful pursuits in the United Kingdom, you will make immediate and careful inquiries into the circumstances of the recipients, and, wherever needed, make provision for their wants, or those of their families. If his Majesty ever chooses to express a wish in these cases, it is to be your law. I am glad to inform you that the purpose and general plan of this fund have been approved by his Majesty's gracious approval. An annual report, including a detailed statement of sums granted, and to whom, and the reasons therefor, shall be made and widely published each year. A finely-executed roll of the heroes and heroines shall be kept displayed in the office at Dunfermline. After the reading of the letter the trustees individually intimated their acceptance of the fund and undertook to administer it in the spirit expressed by the donor.

Huge Benefactions.

Mr. Carnegie, whose vast wealth is derived from the United States Steel Trust, has given away altogether the enormous sum of £30,000,000. The following is a list of his principal benefactions:—

Libraries (1,400)..... £4,400,000
Colleges..... 2,000,000
Carnegie Institution..... 1,000,000
Carnegie Foundation (pensions)..... 1,000,000
Carnegie Hero Fund..... 1,000,000
Scottish Universities..... 3,000,000
Pittsburgh Technical Schools..... 2,000,000
Hague Technical Institute..... 300,000
New York Engineers' Club..... 300,000
Pittsburgh Museum..... 400,000
Various and promised gifts (about)..... 7,500,000

Total..... £30,000,000

The only man who approaches Mr. Carnegie as a benefactor is Mr. Jno. D. Rockefeller, the world's richest man, who has given about £20,000,000 for educational and benevolent purposes.

HISTORY REPEATING ITSELF.

The following lines, which were entitled "The Lament of the Ministry," were published in April, 1872, in the Government. With very little alteration they would well apply to the present Ministry:—

With a flourish we entered; we fall full of shame!
To ourselves, it is true, we must give all the blame.

We were confident, boastful, vainglorious, and proud;
We came in with sunshine, we go out in cloud.

We have tampered with demagogues, trucked to Odger,
Disgraced each landlord, each tenant, and lodger.

We have failed at the ballot, the question called for;
We've been "skinny" and rude, and how we're still here!

Now we're still here, and we're still here;
Is a question of black puddles most persons, we think.

For our "Government" now in their nostrils doth stink.
Stay; we've disdained up a Church, and some of our hard—but it's time we did "walk."

From Downing-st. precincts, or people might talk.

At the Municipal Tramways' Amusement Conference at Nottingham, Mr. Fell, chief officer of the L.C.C. Tramways, was elected president for the ensuing year.

THE HARVEST IN FULL SWING.

increase of between five and six millions in the number sent.

The Limerick Craze.

The number of inland money orders issued during the year was 10,431,497, representing a sum of £29,050,590. The foreign and Colonial orders numbered 3,197,178, and amounted to £9,291,470. The total number of postal orders issued during the year (including those issued abroad) was 125,264,000, representing an amount of £44,614,000, an increase of 22.5 per cent. in number and 9.1 per cent. in amount, as compared with the previous year. This large increase was principally due to the heavy demand for sixpenny orders for "Limerick" competitions.

Savings Bank Deposits.

In connection with the Post Office Savings Bank the number of deposits made during the year ended Dec. 31 was 19,771,969, amounting to £44,217,288; and the withdrawals, £3,368,247, amounted to £40,849,041. The amount withdrawn during the year, therefore, exceeded the amount deposited by £2,518,757, whereas in 1906 the deposits exceeded the withdrawals by £217,577. During the year 69,000 telegrams passed over the Post Office wires, as compared with 92,498,000 in 1906-7, a decrease of 3.9 per cent. The decrease in the number of ordinary telegrams was most marked in the case of London local traffic, and is believed to be due to the increasing popularity of the telephone.

CLUBMEN AS MARKSMEN.

To encourage members of Conservative and Unionist working men's clubs to interest themselves in rifle shooting, the Association of Conservative Clubs has arranged a number of interesting postal competitions for which any of the 1,350 affiliated clubs are eligible to enter. The prizes consist of a number of valuable trophies and medals, and include a silver challenge cup presented by Sir Herbert Mackworth-Prad, the chairman of the association. For this some 60 teams competed last year, the victors being the representatives of the Dover Carlton Club. Full particulars of the competitions, the entries for which close on Oct. 22, are obtainable from the headquarters of the association, St. Stephen's Chambers, Westminster, S.W.

LECTURERS SENT TO PRISON.

At Boston Joseph Albert Edward Bates, a lecturer, and Harold Catton, a Socialist speaker, were fined 5s. and ordered to pay £3 7s. 6d. costs, for causing an obstruction by holding a meeting in Bargate.—Bates, on hearing the decision, said, "I certainly shall not pay the fine. I shall go to prison as a protest against such injustice." Catling also refused to pay, and they were removed in custody.

PASSENGERS' RIGHT.

MAY USE FORCE TO STOP OVERCROWDING.

A passenger in a full railway carriage has a perfect right to push away any one else who tries to get into it. This decision was given by Mr. Paul Taylor at Marylebone, when a man complained that he was pushed out of a carriage at Bishop's-rd. Station by another passenger, who said the car was full. "It is the duty of conductors," Mr. Taylor said, "to see that the trains are not overcrowded. They are perfectly entitled to use reasonable force to prevent any one from boarding cars when they are full. If they fail to avail themselves of this right the passengers are entitled to act for themselves. Otherwise the lives of hundreds of people would be endangered."

YEAR'S TRADE DISPUTES.

According to a Board of Trade report just issued on strikes and lock-outs in the United Kingdom during last year, the number of stoppages of work was the highest recorded since 1901, but they involved as a general rate only small bodies of workpeople. The number of workpeople involved directly and indirectly, in stoppages of work was comparatively small—147,499—and the aggregate duration of all the disputes in progress during the year—2,162,000 working days—was below that of any year for which records exist, except 1904. Seventy-four per cent. of the disputes lasted less than four weeks, and 67 per cent. less than eight weeks. Of 1,545 cases considered by the various voluntary boards of arbitration, 620 were settled by them.

A POPULAR LADY.

Mrs. Poole Wagstaff, the widow of the late Mr. Jas. Poole Wagstaff, of Manor Park, Pott, Beds, and the heroine of a recent famous will case, has been the recipient of a remarkable petition. Some time ago the property known as "Manor Park, Pott"—one of the most beautiful mansions in England—was offered for sale. This almost broke the hearts of the Pott people, for Mrs. Poole Wagstaff had resided among them for many years, and was endeared to every man, woman, and child in the place. Her benevolence had won for her a place in every heart, and they decided to make an effort to retain their benefactress. Thereupon a petition was drawn up, signed by nearly the whole of the inhabitants, and sent to her while travelling in Rome. In reply, Mrs. Wagstaff, a few days ago, gave a tea to all the school children in the place, and has now taken up her residence in Pott again. She received from the townsfolk a magnificent reception.

IN THE COURTS YESTERDAY.

STORIES TOLD TO MAGISTRATES AND CORONERS.

Guildhall.

SURRENDERED IN CANADA.

The story of a defaulting clerk, who gave himself up to the police in Canada was told when Arthur Ratcliffe Alderton, 21, clerk of Park-road, East Acton, was charged with stealing £608 11s. 4d. belonging to his employer, Mr. H. B. Atkinson, West-st., Ebury. Mr. Ratcliffe, prosecuting, explained that on Jan. 17 accused was entrusted with £106 2s. 10d. to pay into the prosecutor's bank. Of the amount £608 11s. 4d. was in cash, and the remainder in cheques. Instead of paying the whole amount in, he destroyed the cheques, and made out a fresh one, and only paid in the cheques. From that time, until he gave himself up to the police, he had not been seen. Det. Marriott said he met accused by appointment at Willesden Junction. When told the charge, he said, "It is more than that."

WENT AWAY WITH £100. I went to Scotland, where I remained for two months. I then went to Winnipeg, and on July 16 gave myself up to the police there. They kept me in custody for five weeks and then discharged me. They told me the warrant had been withdrawn, and I was safe to come home. The Alderman said he would not wish to go to the expense of an extradition. The Alderman: Has there been a system? Mr. Tucker: It is not an isolated case. The total amount of defalcation is £115. In sentencing accused to one month's imprisonment in the second division, Sir Walter Wilkin said he had taken into consideration the fact that accused had suffered five weeks imprisonment in Canada, and had contracted typhoid fever there.

Bow-street.

ALLEGED EXTENSIVE FRAUDS.

A remand was ordered in the case of Ebt. Wicks Baker, 42, a clerk, living at Southend-on-Sea, who was charged with stealing, on June 23, 1898, a case of chamois leather, value £30, the property of his employers, the International Storage Importers, Red Lion-square. Det. Sgt. Barnham gave evidence of arresting prisoner in Red Lion-square on Friday. In reply to the charge he said, "I have not stolen any leather. I gave instructions to send it to— which I admit was very indiscreet." Prisoner was remanded.

ANOTHER CHARGE.

Thos. Small, clerk, in the employment of the same firm, living at Somerset-road, Brixton, was charged with embezzling a cheque for £1 10s. 6d. Mr. Stobbing Russell said he was not prepared to go into the case at present. Prosecutors had been the victims of an ingenious fraud involving forgery and the falsification of accounts, and it would be necessary to go more thoroughly into the books of an extensive sum was involved. Det. Sgt. Stephens gave evidence as to arresting Small. In reply to the charge he said, "I am very sorry, because the firm paid me good wages, and am very kind to their employees. Some two or three years ago I became the dupe of an agent, and borrowed money from them, and since then I have been in their clutches, and have had to do what they told me." Remanded.

SEQUEL TO AN UNCLE'S WILL.

A well-dressed young man, named Reginald Harcourt, was charged, on remand, with forging and altering a mortgage deed, and a promissory note in the name of Campion Watson. It was stated at a previous hearing that Mr. Campion Watson was entitled to a reversionary interest, supposed to be worth about £2,100, under the will of his uncle. In July of last year it was alleged prisoner called upon Mr. Jno. Thos. Higgins, a mortgage broker and moneylender, carrying on business in the Strand. He represented himself to be Mr. Campion Watson, and asked Mr. Higgins if he could arrange a loan for him on the security of what he called his reversionary interest. After lending prisoner some money to meet his temporary requirements Mr. Higgins arranged with the Bedfordshire Loan Co. to advance him £350. Shortly afterwards accused sold his supposed interest, through Mr. Higgins, to Mr. Thorne, an auctioneer, of Leam, for £210. Out of the £210 Mr. Higgins and the Bedfordshire Loan Co. were repaid their advances.

REPAID THEIR ADVANCES.

It was afterwards discovered that accused was not the man he had represented himself to be, and that he was not entitled to any reversion. It was stated that Mr. Higgins had since refunded Mr. Thorne and were losers to the extent of about £200. The real Campion Watson now went into the witness-box. He proved to be an accountant, aged 60, living in Lancaster-road. He said he had not charged in any way his reversionary interest under the will of his uncle, the Rev. Jno. Campion, of Doncaster. He had never seen prisoner until now. Witness was shown the birth certificate said to have been produced by prisoner, and said it related to the birth of his son, Campion Watson, Jun. The case was adjourned, Mr. Pearce saying he had to call a gentleman whose religious belief would not allow him to attend court on a Saturday.

Westminster.

STOKER'S MASQUERADE.

A young fellow of 19, named David Cammell, recently discharged from the Navy, in which he served for rather more than a year as a stoker, was charged with unlawfully exchanging his receiving military clothing. Prisoner's appearance in the dock attracted a good deal of attention. He was in the uniform of a private of the Coldstream Guards, and as his physique and stature were far below that of the average Guardsman, he looked grotesque. The trousers were almost under his armpits, and the tunic nearly reached his knees. Early in the morning prisoner was seen at Buckingham-gate by Sgt. Finnelly, of the Irish Guards, and he stopped and questioned him. His answers were so unsatisfactory that he was PLACED UNDER ARREST.

and taken to Chelsea Barracks. There he admitted that he was not a soldier, but had exchanged his naval uniform for that of a Guardsman, who told him he was a deserter. Sgt. Finnelly was able to complete the story. The missing Guardsman, he said, was one of a draft of 100 men ordered to sail for Egypt a few days ago to reinforce the 3rd Bn. of the Coldstream. He absented himself from barracks, however, and had gone off in prisoner's uniform. Accused now told the magistrate he had no recollection of anything beyond that he was with a soldier. Remanded.

THE OTHER MAN.

During the afternoon the police brought up Benjamin Bagnall, who was charged with being an absentee from the 1st Bn. Coldstream Guards. Bagnall's appearance was as good as that of Casella, the loose sergeant and trousers being several sizes too small. Remanded to be brought up with Casella.

Marylebone.

SCENE IN A PUBLIC-HOUSE. A young man of powerful build, described as Lewis Weaver, of Hunsborough-st., Marylebone, was charged with assaulting Mr. Tom Powell, the licensee of the Lord Collingwood public-house, Hall-place, Edgware, and refusing to quit the licensed premises. Mr. Cartwright, prosecutor, entered the public-house with two other men, and after being served with drink he commenced teasing some of the barman at once requested him to stop and leave the house, but he refused. In the end the barman called in Mr. Powell, and he, too, learning what had happened, called accused prisoner to leave. Weaver still refused, however. "I shall stay as long as I like," he said, "and tons as much as I like." His companions then left, but accused remained obstinate, and Mr. Powell therefore went to him, put his hand on his shoulder, and led him to the door. He went quietly enough, but then reached the lobby, and he then turned upon Mr. Powell, struck him a violent blow on the nose with his left hand, and followed it up by striking him across the face with a stick, cutting his lip. He aimed a second blow at his head with the stick, but Mr. Powell seized it just in time and snatched it away. Prisoner then rushed into the house, and he had left the house prosecutor and six other men rushed in, and gave him a hiding with a stick such as he had never had in his life before. Fined 40s., or one month.

A GRAVE CHARGE.

A grave charge was preferred against Augustus Sidney Roux, 21, dental assistant, of Upper Gloucester-st., namely, criminal misconduct with Dulcie Fullett, aged eight, living with her parents at the same address. Mr. Pierson, prosecutor, for N.E.P.C.C., while Mr. Bennett, for the defence, explained that prisoner and his wife were lodgers at a house in Upper Gloucester-st., and had previously lived in the same house as her parents at Old Quebec-st. About seven weeks ago, he said, Mrs. Roux asked her to go and stay in her room while she went out. She did so, and while she was sitting on the bed looking at a book she alleged prisoner commenced to tickle her. On another occasion she again went to her room at Mrs. Roux's request, and as she was lying on the bed drawing, she said, prisoner committed a serious assault upon her. He repeated it later, but she told no one.

until her mother spoke to her, as prisoner threatened that if she did not go to school. The child's mother and aunt both spoke to her on several occasions, and said that sometimes his wife was also present. The mother added that her daughter was not given to telling "fair tales." The doctor was by no means satisfied that the child's interview with the prisoner, when arrested, said, "Good God, it is not true." Mr. Pierson remarked that the medical evidence threw great doubt upon the story of the child, but she was a very intelligent girl, and evidently realised the full significance of her statement. He thought the case ought to be committed to a jury. Committed for trial; prisoner admitted to bail in his own recognisances.

West London.

AN EXCITING CAPTURE.

The smart capture of an alleged burglar was told when Chas. Jones, 21, a flower seller, was charged with breaking into 4, The Broadway, Hammermith, a block of offices with intent to steal. Mr. Holford, photographic material manufacturer, of Fritchville-gardens, Shepherd's Bush, stated that he occupied an office at the top floor, and on Friday night he was working all night. He heard a noise on the stairs and went down, and then, hearing the sound of a scuffle on the lower stair, went back to his room, opened the window and a policeman came to the premises with prisoner in his custody. P.O. 777 stated that at 4 a.m. he heard a thud at the door of these premises, and a second later, saw prisoner dart out and run up Brook Green-rd. He followed him, and prisoner turned and threw a stone at him. Witness kept up the pursuit, started him and brought him back to the Broadway, picking up the jemmy on the way. There were marks on the door, which had been pried open, corresponding with the marks on the jemmy. Further charged with attempting to break into an outstiter's shop at 25A, King-st., Hammermith, occupied by Mr. Geo. Wm. King. Mr. King stated that he was aroused by his lodger who heard a noise at the door. He went to the door and found that a large piece of wood had been broken off of the door near the lock. He did not see anyone, but his lodger had heard a man running away. Insp. Land stated that the marks on Mr. King's door corresponded with the jemmy which prisoner threw away. Remanded.

A WARDEN'S EXPERIENCE.

Strange evidence was given when Patrick Kelly, 45, labourer, was charged on remand with being concerned, with his brother John Kelly (now undergoing nine months' term of imprisonment in the County Gaol, London), in demanding the sum of 3d. from Robt. Jas. Brown, a warder at Wormwood Scrubs Prison. The later stated that while proceeding along Uxbridge-rd., in civilian clothes, on June 21, he was accosted by the two men, whom he knew. They asked for 3d. for a lodging, and when he told them to go away John Kelly said, "If you don't give us the money you'll have to go through it." Witness threatened to give them into custody, whereupon John Kelly struck him in the face, and prisoner also tried to strike him. He managed to detain John Kelly, but prisoner got away. Committed for trial.

Clerkenwell.

NOT ONE OF THE GANG. Every week railway robberies are now being chronicled, and another man, Ernest Edwards, 28, engine fitter, was charged with stealing a bag at St. Pancras Station, the property of the Midland Ry. Co. He was taken the bag from the guard's van of the 2.30 p.m. Manchester express. "I am hard up," he declared sorrowfully. "I have had practically nothing to eat lately and have had to sleep in Hyde Park." He had only been in London for three weeks. This story was partly borne out by police inquiries. Mr. Hutton: He is not one of the gang of railway thieves which has been so successful and dangerous lately. The regular punishment, which deserves the severest, must be met, where the railway company wishes it. I will remand prisoner for the missionary to see him.

IN THE POLICE MUSEUM. "Yesterday," said Mr. Bickitts, the solicitor, "our worship conducted a man for keeping a betting-house. The police seized some slips. Now the man, as an honourable man, wishes to pay out to those clients who have won. Will you direct that the slips be given back to him for that purpose?" "Those slips," replied Mr. Hutton, "are now, I suppose, valuable curiosities in the police museum at Scotland Yard. I can make no order."

SCOTCH LASSIE IN LONDON.

When Annabella Duncan, 15, was charged with wandering abroad without visible means of subsistence, P.C. St. Alban's, Kennington-rd., There was a cross summons charging Kimish with assaulting Jenkins. Kimish stated that last Friday week he rode his bicycle on to the turf at Clapham Common, and was told by Jenkins to get off. He did so, and Jenkins was not satisfied, requested, and taking hold of his throat tried to strangle him. Wm. Davis, of Loughborough-rd., Kennington, summoned as for assaulting the constable, deposed that Jenkins spoke to Kimish very roughly, saying, "I'll have your name and address." "I don't have it," he said. "I'll have the bicycle," Kimish said. "No you won't," and got hold of the machine. Jenkins then said, "I will have you then," and clinging hold of him exclaimed, "I'll strangle you." They Tower Bridge.

A MUSIC-HALL CHALLENGE.

A story of alleged stabbing was told when Joe Bow, 20, printer, of East-st., Walworth, was charged with wounding Geo. Cole by stabbing him in the neck at Blackfriars-rd. Prosecutor, a young man, said he had just returned from "hopping," and he went to the Surrey Music Hall with several friends to enjoy himself. The party included a "young" woman, who had gone down to visit the hoppers, by way of holiday, on two successive Sundays. This apparently annoyed prisoner, and upon finding the young woman with witness at the music hall he became furiously jealous, and challenged witness to a fight. He then attacked witness with a knife or some sharp instrument, and stabbed him in the neck, inflicting a small wound, which was treated at St. Thomas's Hospital. Det. Sgt. Ward, L.D.V., said he arrested prisoner, who exclaimed, "Yes, I do it. I lost my head, and was mad. Him and his gang set about me, and I pulled a piece of steel back out of my pocket and struck him with it. If I hadn't done it on him they would have done it on me." Committed for trial.

Lambeth.

TRAPPED BY MARKED MONEY.

Six weeks' hard labour was the sentence passed on Joseph Robinson, 31, a Brixton barman, charged with stealing 16s. 6d. of a packet of tobacco, the property of his employer, Wm. Tree, licensee of the Crown public-house, Coldharbour-lane. Prisoner entered his service a month ago, and in consequence of suspicious entertainments, the police were communicated with. On Thursday and Friday some marked money was passed over the bar, and other marked coins were placed in the till. On Friday afternoon prisoner was called into prosecutor's office and was asked to turn out his pockets. To Det. Sgt. Hodge prisoner admitted stealing the cigarettes and tobacco, but denied having had any money. The officer pointed out to him that two of the coins were marked, and a sixpence was marked and told him he would be arrested for stealing the coins. Prisoner then admitted the offence, adding that, having been given notice to leave, he thought he might as well have a bit before he went.

WHAT TO DO WITH BAD BOYS.

The problem of two bad boys engaged against them, George Wm. Carpenter, 9, and his brother, Albert Edward Carpenter, 8, two tiny boys, were charged with being concerned together in stealing the sum of 4d. from Florence Fowler, a prosecutrix, a girl of eight, was in Newington Butts on an errand for her mother. She was carrying 4d. in her hand, and was told by the boys to hand it over. She refused, and the boys then threatened to break into an outstiter's shop at 25A, King-st., Hammermith, occupied by Mr. Geo. Wm. King. Mr. King stated that he was aroused by his lodger who heard a noise at the door. He went to the door and found that a large piece of wood had been broken off of the door near the lock. He did not see anyone, but his lodger had heard a man running away. Insp. Land stated that the marks on Mr. King's door corresponded with the jemmy which prisoner threw away. Remanded.

came along, and touched by the team of the girl he went after the older boy and captured him. The younger boy escaped, but was afterwards brought to the police station by his mother.

Old-street.

CLERGYMAN'S WIFE ROBBED.

Having performed some errands of mercy in some of the squalid streets of Kingsland-rd., Mrs. Church, the wife of a local clergyman, was returning home to Curtain-rd., Shoreditch, on the night of the 17th inst., when on nearing Esplanade, she was accosted by two small silver and certain articles, was snatched from her wrist by a youth alleged to be Thos. Fitzgerald, of St. Luke's. He ran away, the lady followed, and before losing sight of him through his dashing into a house in Gifford-st., and escaping by the back door, she managed to get a glimpse of his face.

A VIEW OF HIS FACE. and to gain a good impression of his appearance. Subsequently she gave a description of the man to a friend, Det. Chandler a clear description of her assailant, and P.C. Budd, who was assisting that officer, managed to lay Fitzgerald by the heels in Hoxton-st. the following night. He was placed among several other men, and was immediately identified by Mrs. Church as the culprit in the case.

Det. Chandler afterwards said, including to the lady, "She made a mistake, Chandler; I didn't do it, but I know who did." To Mr. Birn the prisoner repeated this statement when brought up on remand, and he mentioned that two other witnesses who had subsequently been brought to identify him as the youth who was seen running away failed to do so. Det. Chandler said that was quite true, but he thought it was rather significant that one of the witnesses, before she saw the men amongst whom prisoner was placed, exclaimed, "He's not here." Mr. Birn considered the evidence sufficient upon which to commit prisoner to the Sessions, and he did so, allowing bail.

South-Western.

PARK CONSTABLE AND BICYCLIST.

As a sequel to a scene on Clapham Common, Chas. Thos. Jenkins, a park constable in the service of the L.C.C., answered to a summons for assaulting Alfred Danl. Kimish of St. Alban's, Kennington-rd. There was a cross summons charging Kimish with assaulting Jenkins. Kimish stated that last Friday week he rode his bicycle on to the turf at Clapham Common, and was told by Jenkins to get off. He did so, and Jenkins was not satisfied, requested, and taking hold of his throat tried to strangle him. Wm. Davis, of Loughborough-rd., Kennington, summoned as for assaulting the constable, deposed that Jenkins spoke to Kimish very roughly, saying, "I'll have your name and address." "I don't have it," he said. "I'll have the bicycle," Kimish said. "No you won't," and got hold of the machine. Jenkins then said, "I will have you then," and clinging hold of him exclaimed, "I'll strangle you." They

NOTES TO THE GROUND.

Witness pulled Jenkins away, and he (Jenkins) said he would serve him the same. He defended himself, striking him in the face. Jenkins, giving evidence, said he asked Kimish, politely to get off the turf. He got off, and witness asked for his name and address. Kimish refused, and was urged by Davis and witness to get into custody. He took hold of his coat collar, and when Davis obstructed him. Another of their companions said, "Kick him; he will let you go." Kimish tried to do so. Witness prevented him, and they both fell to the ground. Davis then punched witness. Mr. De Grey thought that Kimish had been badly treated. When told to get off the turf he did so. The constable had no business to take him into custody. The men certainly assaulted him, but the assault was modified by the injuries sustained by Davis and witness. Kimish and Davis fined 5s. each; the summons against Jenkins dismissed.

Greenwich.

LODGING-HOUSE ROBBERY.

A similarity of names figured in a case where P.O. 777, of Carlingford, was charged, on remand, with stealing a postal order for 5s. the property of Frank Ellis Price. The name "Price" was affixed to a board, showing that a letter had been received for a person of that name. Prisoner, who was a lodger in the house, went to the office and asked for the letter, which was given to him. He now admitted that, opening the letter and seeing that it was not intended for him, he was nevertheless tempted by the sight of the P.O., which he changed, as he was hard up. A month's hard labour.

North London.

BOY'S ADVENTURE.

On remand Edw. Arthur Gault, 14, of 72, Spencer-rd., Stoke Newington, was charged with breaking and entering the Wordsworth-rd. Baptist Chapel, Stoke Newington, and stealing from the adjacent schoolroom four pairs boys' knickers, two bodices, four jackets, overcoat, petticoat, blouse, corset, and part of a trowsers, together value 42s. the property of the Rev. H. Squire, of Clonsdale, Stoke Newington. Prisoner and another boy were observed by the pastor's son to gain access to the place by a window. Assistance was summoned and the boys captured. The articles were found packed up ready for removal. On the last occasion the other boy concerned was ordered 12 strokes with the birch. It was stated by P.C. 14 JR that Gault said he took the clothes to sell in order to buy others for himself. He was in rags. Mr. H. Bowsher, industrial schools' officer, said prisoner had been in a truant school. He was quite out of the control of his mother, a widow. He wandered about the streets with bigger for prisoner than to send him to an industrial school. Mr. Fordham: I will send him to the Bedfordshire Reformatory until he is 19. Prisoner (eagerly): Will you send me to a ship instead? Mr. Bowsher said the reformatory school had no vacancy in a ship just now, but the boy could be transferred later. The magistrate told the boy that he would have his wish complied with, and hoped he would soon have a ship found for him.

Highgate.

STRUCK HIS SWEETHEART.

"You ought to be thrashed for striking a woman," said the magistrate to a young man named Preedy, who was charged with having assaulted his late sweetheart, Maggie Beardon, of Camphorne, Hoxney. P.C. Williams said Maggie came to him in High-st. Hoxney, and complained tearfully that Preedy had assaulted her. Witness and complainant went to prisoner, who when taken replied, "Yes, I punched her on the nose, and tried to hit her again." Maggie said she had kept company with Preedy four years, and a shilling previously prisoner took a shilling from her, and when she asked for it back he struck her on the mouth. Prisoner said he was done with Maggie and she didn't like it. Remanded.

Acton.

A FIND OF BUTTER.

Watchfulness on the part of the police led to the arrest of John H. Johnson, 34, and Harold Dudman, 27, both described as homeless labourers, who were charged as suspected persons loitering at the Avenue, Bedford Park, for the supposed purpose of committing a felony, and further with being in possession of 1lb. of butter, supposed to have been stolen. Det. Sgt. Bedford said his attention was directed to prisoners by another officer, and witness followed them from South Parade to the Avenue. They walked and loitered along several roads where there were large houses. They were stopped, and told they would be arrested as suspected persons. P.C. Thompson then put his hand into Johnson's pocket and withdrew two packets of butter. Questioned about it, Johnson, pointing to Dudman, said, "He bought it," but Dudman answered, "I didn't." The officer added that he thought the butter had been stolen from a barrow. Remanded.

Croydon.

STOLE A DEAD PIG.

The theft of a dead pig was related when Geo. Howard, 28, butcher, of Johnson-rd., Croydon, and Alb. Thornton, 22, carmen, were charged with stealing the carcass of a pig, valued at 15s., from the Corporation slaughterhouse at Pitlake, Croydon. The pig belonged to Mr. Crust, who had 15 hanging up on Saturday afternoon, and on Sunday he missed one. Geo. Huggatt, a butcher, of Church-st., Croydon, said Howard brought him a pig on Saturday night, and for it witness gave him 22s. Detecting it, he stated that when Howard was in the street, he said, "I have been hard up, and have done very little work, or I should not have done it. Thornton, when arrested on Tuesday, owned up to participating in the robbery, but said "Tiggy" (Howard) dragged him into it by asking him to go to the slaughterhouse and get the pig, which they took over a fire, and then they went to Huggatt's shop. Howard said he got 22s. and gave me 15s., and I have been worrying ever since "Tiggy" got pinched." Both men pleaded poverty through being out of work. Det. Sgt. Webb said there had been many complaints of loss of meat from slaughterhouses. Howard was sentenced to two months and Thornton one month.

IMPUDENCE IN THE DOCK.

"I have heard it so many times before; I don't want to listen," said Joseph Dealing, 42, who was committed for trial last week on a charge of firing Wrenham and Waters' factory at Wadden, when committed for trial at the Surrey Assizes on a charge of stealing a keeper's coat from Wandale Park Recreation Ground, breaking into the house, and with having house-breaking implements in his possession, and with a burglary at Lansdowne-rd. Accused displayed considerable impudence when the usual warning was read, before he commenced utterance to the words reported above.

Stratford.

AN OPEN "SEENIVE."

Keeping open during prohibited hours and allowing liquors to be sold was the reason for the appearance of Sidney G. Booth, licensee of the Beehive public house, Beehive-lane, Barking-rd. The evidence showed that at 11.23 p.m. a constable was passing and saw that the house was still open. He went to the door, and just then a man came out. Going inside the officer found the men in the bar. One had some beer in his hand and drank a second held a pewter pot, and there was a glass of beer upon the counter in front of the third. The person in charge said he was not aware it was 11 o'clock.

AT THE WHITE OX.

Mr. Wigglesby (defending) admitted the facts, and in mitigation said defendant was away at the City of the White Ox, and was in charge of his father. He was not aware it had passed 11 o'clock until his attention was called to it. Fined 25s. and 41s. costs. Jas. Howson, Geo. Page, and Pdk. Coe, were fined 25s. each for being on the premises during prohibited hours, and John Lucas, who did not appear, was fined 25s. and 4s. costs.

NET BY ACCIDENT.

A man with a net in Owen Gomm, 19, a hawker, who was charged on remand with being a person subject to the Prevention of Crimes Act, found in High-rd., Ilford, supposed for the purpose of committing a felony. The evidence showed that on the previous Wednesday morning Det. Sgt. Scrimshaw and Det. McMullen saw prisoner and three other young fellows in Romford-rd., Manor Park. Prisoner was seen by the officers to enter several shops, and also to look through an office window, whilst occasionally the other men also went into shops. On reaching Ley-st., Ilford, the men saw the police officers and ran away, but prisoner was caught and arrested. He now denied that he was out with any felonious intent, and added that he only met the other men by accident. Several previous convictions, including one of 12 months for shop-breaking, were proved against Gomm. Two months' hard labour.

EX-GUARDIAN'S LICENSE.

Application was made for the transfer of the license of the Eagle Hotel, Sharnbrook, from Mr. Rowland Hirst, the convicted Mile End guard, to his son, Mr. Lewis Rbt. Hirst. Mr. Duckworth said that it would be within the recollection of the bench that the licensee of the hotel, Mr. Rowland Hirst, was a Chairman. We need not go into that. Has the father given the son power of attorney? Mr. Duckworth stated that he had, and the bench then granted the transfer.

West Ham.

THE WRITING ON THE TABLE.

Some curious evidence was given when Frank Miller, 48, a glass printer, of Acot-st., Canning Town, was charged with stealing a purse containing two coverings belonging to Matilda Jasper, a tailor, and prisoner had lodged with Mrs. Jasper for three months, but although she had provided him with food during that time he had never given her any money. She went out on Thursday morning leaving prisoner in the house, and when she returned later she missed a purse containing two coverings from a box on the table. Written in chalk on the kitchen table was the message, "I am going to have a drink." He slept at the house that night, and went out the next morning, and nothing was seen of him until Friday morning, when he was found asleep in the front room and was given into custody, 16s. 8d. being found in his possession, which he said his brother had given to him. Remanded.

East Ham.

A YOUNG PENSIONER.

Described as a musician, Chas. French, 21, of Railway-terrace, High-rd., Ilford, was charged with gambling with cards and money. East Ham. French admitted the offence. P.C. Bryant described how he and six or seven other men on Friday evening were playing banker. He gave chase to them when they ran away and caught French. The Bench said prisoner was old enough to know better than to set so bad an example to the younger generation. He fined him 5s. and 4s. costs. French asked for time to pay the money, and the constable then told the Bench that prisoner had been in the Army, and was in receipt of a pension of 1s. a day for 12 months. He was told he must pay before the end of the month, before the court accounts are made up.

Willesden.

GIRL'S LOVE OF FINERY.

A love of finery appears to have led to some serious trouble for a young woman, named Marion, 17, a smartly dressed servant girl, of Stafford-rd., Kilburn, being charged with stealing small articles of jewellery and clothing belonging to her mistress, Marion Gardner, of Broadbury Park. Mrs. Gardner missed the things and questioned the girl about them. She denied any knowledge of them, but when she heard that police had been given a search of her room, she ran away. When arrested all the articles were found upon her. Remanded.

Kingston.

ALLEGED CONCEALMENT OF BIRTH.

Looking very ill, and occupying a chair at the side of the dock, in the charge of a matron, Norah Charles, 21, a domestic servant, of no fixed abode, was charged with endeavouring to conceal the birth, by secret disposal of the body, of her male child, at 26, Browne-rd., Surbiton Hill. Det. Sgt. Gough deposed that on the evening of Sept. 15 he went to the front bedroom of 26, Browne-rd., Surbiton, where accused was staying. After being cautioned, accused said, "Early on Friday morning last, the 11th inst., I felt ill, and went to the lavatory. Whilst there I gave birth to a child. I think I heard the child cry. I fainted, and on regaining consciousness I put the child in a basket and placed it under my bed in the bedroom. I was not expecting it until another fortnight. On searching the room witness could find no preparation for the birth in the form of clothing." Det. Insp. Badcock stated that he arrested accused at the Kingston Infirmary, where she has been for the past few days. On the warrant being read over to her accused said, "I did not tell anyone because I was afraid I made no arrangements because I had no money, and was not expecting it for a fortnight. I was going into the workhouse to have the child." At the police station accused made no reply. Answering the chairman, Det. Sgt. Gough stated that the infant on the child had been opened and adjourned until next Wednesday. Accused was remanded until after the inquest.

CHAIRMAN'S CAPTURE.

The Chairman (Mr. W. Y. Cockburn) drew the attention of the police to the nuisance in Surbiton, and especially at Avenue Hill, caused by boys throwing stones at chestnut trees. More than a dozen boys were throwing stones at the trees outside his residence, and his gardener had picked up a barrow-load of stones, some as large as a man's fist, from one end of his garden, making it positively dangerous to persons walking down there. As he was starting to come down to the court he (the chairman) caught one boy throwing stones at the chestnut trees, and made his residence, when spoken to the boy became very indignant, saying, "Why, I am a policeman's son." Insp. Hall, the officer in charge of the court, said that the police would give special attention to the matter.

INQUESTS.

A WORKHOUSE CASE.

Dr. Westcott held an inquest at Hackney on Maria Royal, 58, widow of a carman. Maria Hines, wife of a labourer, of Devonshire-place, London Fields, stated that five years ago deceased, who was witness's aunt, had to enter the workhouse. On the 17th inst. witness saw her aunt in the strong-room of the infirmary, and protected against a woman of her age being so treated. Her arms were bruised and she had a cut across her forehead. Next day she was in an ordinary ward, and unconscious. Witness was informed of her death on the 23rd inst. Martha Gray, granddaughter of deceased, stated that she saw the old lady frequently in the workhouse. She complained that she was "hardly used." Miss Platt, a workhouse inmate, stated that she was a "night woman" in the convalescent ward. On Aug. 28, about 2 a.m., deceased, who was very restless, got out of bed and fell, striking her head on the fender. Witness put her to bed and sent for the doctor, and later in the evening the doctor saw her. She was removed to the infirmary the same day. She complained about being "used cruel."

A great many people seem disposed to think, after this year's experience

NOTES, PROBLEMS, & PUZZLES.

BY OUR OWN SPECIALISTS.

CARDS.

[By E. B. TURNER.]

I have decided to hold over the solutions of the problems I set last week until our next issue. I want to compare the solutions I may get with the solutions given by the readers of these puzzles. Mr. Johnson's two questions require a different method, or rather the introduction of a different set of numbers for their solution, and in this way are unlike any which I have set up to this time, and I want to see if any of my readers "tumble" to it. So I shall give the answers next week.

BRIDGE.

The following letter was reached me with regard to a Bridge declaration:—
"Dear Sir,—May I trouble you to let me the right declaration—cards, games, all, 24, 25 against dealer, who leaves it: Hearts, King, Jack, 3; Spades, King, Queen, 10; Clubs, Queen, 10, 9; Diamonds, 4, 3, 2, A—You, etc., W. 47. 7. 1908."
I presume this hand was held by dealer's partner, and he has to make the declaration on a pass. It is a hand of great interest, for it has given me my own opinion by post, and I shall be very glad to have some of my readers' opinions as to the correct call, at the score, with this hand, and the reason for their decision, and I will give my own ideas next week.

TRENT ET QUARANTE.
I am afraid I did not make myself quite clear as to the way in which this game is played. I have had the following letter from "R. S.," which puts things so plainly that I publish it:—
"As played at Monte Carlo the first, or top row of cards dealt is always Noir, the bottom one being Rouge. In addition to Rouge and Noir, there are two other even chances that can be backed each deal, viz., Couleur and Tranche. Couleur wins when the colour of the first card in the winning row is the same as the winning colour. Noir wins when the top row wins, the first card in the row must be black for Couleur to win; inverse wins if the colour is red. The same occurs if Rouge (or lower row) wins—You, etc., H. 7. 1908."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.
CHAMBERLAIN. G. Christopher. Many thanks. I missed it on reading over your problem at first. Swans—With cards played in order: 4, 4, 5, 7, 4, the player of the second 4 does not score a run.
BARON. —Admission—You ask me to crack a very hard nut. In the first place I do not think your partner should have doubled. In the second I do not think your partner should have doubled. Of course, your forward play would always do so, but, at the score, if I had been your partner I should have said "light" and been content to see the game, and keep my opponent ignorant where the strength in trumps was, and perhaps with luck score a trick on their deal. With regard to bidding up, I think it a most good point after way. I probably should have done so myself for one round, anyhow. Then I think you would have been wiser to go in with the last Club, as your opponent, and give your partner another discard. But that again is a doubtful point. I think if you opened a fresh suit then your partner in rather a bad position. If you open the Diamonds you are quite right in leading him with the King, on his double, but then you give the dealer the chance of getting in with the Ace and drawing trumps, which is what dealer wants from his lead of the 9. I rather think, if I had opened a new suit, I should have played out the Ace and let the Diamonds lead another Spade, and let the Diamonds lead another Spade, and let the Diamonds lead another Spade. But I think I should have got rid of the lead by playing the last club but one, and waiting for events. Whatever you do, you lost the game, which is a consideration. I do not think you were to blame in leading the Diamond. Discards against a trump declaration do not tell as much as against a No Trump.

CHESS.

[By T. E. LAWRENCE.]

Hopes and anticipations of a turn of the tide in the fight for the World's Championship have been raised by the recent triumph of Dr. Tarrasch over his opponent, who has won two to his opponent's one, with one draw, and the score now stands at six to three against him. Formidable odds for a win the match, but he must score five before Lasker puts two to his credit. Still, matches have been won before now under far more discouraging conditions, and history has a tendency to repeat itself. Whatever the issue, it is a source of gratification that the numbers master who should have shown what he is capable of and saved the match from being the one-sided, hollow affair that at one time threatened. After the fifth round, which was won by his opponent, Lasker decided to take advantage of the break. The strain of such a contest of such importance is tremendous, and the break will be welcome to both players.

The eighth game of the match saw yet another key position, and Lasker, having the move and Lasker adopting the regular defence, a Kt-KB3; 4, Castle, KtP. Black early discovered a threatening position. Much interesting and subtle maneuvering followed, but Tarrasch managed to force the attack and draw, being a Pawn down, but with Bishops of opposite colours.

In the ninth game Tarrasch again chose the Ruy Lopez variation of the "French." Queens were exchanged at the seventh move and the game was gradually reduced to an endgame. Black holding a slight edge throughout. Against Lasker's patient defence the advantage was insufficient to win, and a draw resulted at the 12th move. The 18th game followed the eighth until the 16th move, when Tarrasch found a powerful continuation and playing with great judgment and resource forced Lasker's resignation in 32 moves.

We give the score of the 11th game, a very instructive example of Lasker's method of strategy and tactics. Most of the moves are quiet and of surface innocence, but the distinctive feature is the masterly manner in which they are directed together at operations are directed first on one wing and then on the other, until at last Black's game crumbles to pieces. The 12th game was won by Dr. Tarrasch.

Mr. Blackburne will commence his winter season on Oct. 1st with an exhibition of blindfold play, six games simultaneously, at the Insurance Club. On the 5th he starts on a tour through the Northern and Midland counties, commencing with Northampton.

Spoken (after 2nd verse).—You have to put up with something in the Law Courts. The judge just now called me a plaintiff. I've been called a few things in my time, but never one of them! He wanted to know how I met the defendant. I'm blessed if I remember myself! I knew it was outside a huge building—they would not serve me inside. I was waiting for a bus or something, and while I was standing there something seemed to come over me. I felt myself going, so I grabbed hold of a lamp-post, but it wasn't a lamp-post at all. It was Adolphus! I thought it was such a romantic meeting with my future intended. I got up and said, "Oo-er-er-er!" He tried to raise his hat, but he couldn't. He was sitting on it! I was wearing a beautiful flannel-ette costume trimmed with chiffon and dough-nuts. It was all white, except where I'd sat down in the road. Well, we got on the bus and the conductor was so pleasant. I said, "Oo-er-er-er!" Then Adolphus told me his past life, and what a life! His name was Adolphus de Trop. He had a moustache on his lip that looked like a damaged tooth-brush. I'll never forget the first time I had that moustache on my lip. Oh, girls, the sensation of your first kiss! But although we were so nice I'll tell you this in confidence—he deceived me. He trifled with my girlish affections. I wouldn't let him kiss me until we were engaged, so when he threw me over I sued him for "Breach and osculation under promise of marriage." I showed them something when I got in the witness-box. The judge was there with his night-cap on. I said, "Oo-er-er-er!" He said, "Order, please." What I got for? The pit? By the way, aren't K.C.'s expensive? There's an old proverb which says, "Keep your own counsel." I paid my counsel for the 25th of June—"I said, "No, I didn't." Then he said, "Is it true that the defendant—" I said, "No, it isn't." I had him all ways. He said, "Are you aware that you are treating the Court with contempt?" I said, "I'm treating them to nothing." Then he said, "I put it to you that this was merely a mild flirtation and that neither of you meant anything at the time." I replied, "Well, if he meant nothing when he was with me, I wouldn't like to be with him when he did mean something!" When my counsel got up he was so nice. I said, "Oo-er-er-er!" He then read the letters out. Wait a minute. I'll read them to you. (Produces letters and reads). "Dearest, dearest, "Oo-er-er-er!" (Sounds as if I was a bit expensive, doesn't it?) "I am counting the hours to when I shall see you again." (What's this?) "I wouldn't be counting his money, he never had any when he was with me!" I cannot forget your face. "Keep your own counsel." I said, "What's this?" "It's awfully sweet. Darling, there is a dairy outside our drawing room window, and when I see the animals tripping in and out of the yard I always think of you. Yours Adolphus." Here's another one. "Dear little Mousie. Excuse me not writing before, but I am having a week's holiday." (as a week's holiday). "I think of you all day except at meal-times. You know I love you for yourself alone. Can you lend me £1 till Tuesday. Your lovingly Adolphus." This is the letter where he promised marriage. "My darling Queenie—I am calling round to-night to propose to you. If you accept me I shall shoot myself. Yours Adolphus. P.S.—Bring your money with you. Well, to come to the point. I accepted him and he shot at himself and missed him." Then I brought this suit against him. The case was over when I left the Court. I don't know the verdict yet. (News-papers handed on). Now I'll read you the news. "Bride of a week's notice." That's not it. Here we are. Breach of promise case. Verdict. I'm so excited. (Reads). "The judge summing up said it was a frivolous case, and the plaintiff, Miss Winterbottom, would be bound over to keep the peace for twelve months. The defendant had evidently proposed to her, and he would be committed for trial on the charge of attempted suicide during temporary insanity!" Cue—
